

Paula Kline, Quaker educator and peace and environmental activist, has a doctorate in Human Development from Harvard. In the 1980s she co-founded a project with a sister city in Nicaragua in support of the social justice revolution there. As a climate activist she has focused on divestment and reinvestment and promoting the shift to 100% renewable electricity for schools and faith communities. She currently serves as the coordinator for PA Interfaith Power and Light's Sustained Climate Advocacy and on the Eco-Justice Collaborative of Philadelphia Yearly Meeting.
