

Mark Engler is an author and journalist based in Philadelphia. His new book, This Is an Uprising: How Nonviolent Revolt Is Shaping the Twenty-First Century, written with Paul Engler, has just been released by Nation Books. Mark is an editorial board member at Dissent, a contributing editor at Yes! Magazine, and a senior analyst with Foreign Policy In Focus, a network of foreign policy experts. Additionally, Mark serves as a monthly columnist for the Oxford, UK-based New Internationalist magazine. An archive of his work is available at DemocracyUprising.com.

Mark's first book, How to Rule the World: The Coming Battle Over the Global Economy (Nation Books), was selected by the Drum Major Institute as one of the "most interesting and informative progressive books" of 2008. This Is an Uprising has been lauded as "as landmark book" (Bill McKibben), "a genuine gift to social movements everywhere" (Naomi Klein), and "a true masterpiece on the history, logic, ethics, and power of nonviolent action" (Erica Chenoweth).

Mark's articles on social movements, the global economy, Latin American affairs, militarism, domestic politics, and the environment appear in publications including The Nation, Salon, Rolling Stone, Audubon, The Progressive, the San Francisco Chronicle, The Guardian, Newsday, Mother Jones, The Christian Science Monitor, In These Times, Waging Nonviolence, Grist Magazine, and TomDispatch. His work has been featured in anthologies including Democracy in Print: The Best of The Progressive Magazine, 1909-2009.

Mark's articles have been translated into more than 15 languages. He is a member of the Authors Guild.

Originally from Des Moines, Iowa, Mark graduated from Harvard University in 1998, where he studied ethics in the modern West, with a focus on human rights theory and liberation theology. He subsequently worked for the Arias Foundation for Peace and Human Progress, where he served as a speechwriter and assistant to Dr. Oscar Arias, former president of Costa Rica and the 1987 Nobel Peace Laureate. Mark has also lived in or reported from Guatemala, El Salvador, Mexico, Brazil, and other parts of Latin America.

Mark is an experienced public speaker and has been a guest on BBC World News, National Public Radio, and dozens of Pacifica, commercial talk radio, and independent radio stations, addressing issues ranging from popular protests, economic crises, and debt relief to U.S. military actions, trade politics, and elections throughout the Americas. He has served as a commentator for the Institute for Public Accuracy and for the Mainstream Media Project.